Managing purchasing and sales across several branch offices

A+W Enterprise functionalities

A+W Enterprise is a fully-integrated, multi-site-capable ERP system for corporate groups as well as medium- and large-sized companies with multiple sites in the flat glass finishing industry.

This comprehensive system includes features for sales management, sales support, purchasing management, inventory management, and dispatch planning.

A+W Enterprise is divided into three architectural levels: presentation, application logic, and database. These can be installed and operated on different computers, which increases the scalability and fail-safe nature of the system. The application relies on a relational database and is available in LINUX and UNIX versions. The user front end can also be installed on Microsoft Windows.

With A+W Enterprise, it's possible to manage several sites (databases/locations) at the same time. The process steps are handled simultaneously across all integrated system areas (sales, purchasing, inventory, production, and dispatch) and are automated to a great extent. Inquiries and orders received centrally can be entered in a call center and distributed automatically to individual production locations.

Thanks to location-spanning stock forecasts and order information, you can always keep an eye on individual orders, as well as your inventories and capabilities. Bookings in production are processed in the background allowing you to view the production status of individual orders and order items at any time.

The sophisticated system enables you to grant employees the necessary rights for a specific location or across locations.

The system can be customized to the user's individual requirements for easy operation.
